Case Study: Orchard Farm

“To say that we are delighted with the finished job is something of an understatement! From our first discussion about having our property insulated (after only some 250 years!) we have appreciated the way SERS have provided a first class service throughout. The attention to detail has been excellent and the performance of your team left everyone ‘gobsmacked’ in terms of both the quality of work and the speed with which it was completed. Now, we will be able to enjoy a warm, cosy environment whatever the elements throw at us without breaking the bank as a result of ever rising fuel bills!” Mr and Mrs Hodges.

When Mr and Mrs Hodges decided to insulate their 18th Century home they had just one wish; that the work was completed with the properties original appearance in mind. Their home had history attached to it locally and the couple were extremely keen to maintain the appearance as much as possible – whilst achieving the benefits external wall insulation can bring to a very cold and old home.

As a result their home became warmer than it had ever been before, allowing them to switch down their heating thus saving them money and improving their living conditions. Through the use of a white render on the exterior, the property’s façade was safeguarded for the future. This property was insulated by SERS as a ‘one-off’ property in a rural location in Staffordshire.
